Fraud Exposed.

Counterfeiters have lately been trying to sell imitations of the New Life Pills for constipation, coughs and colds and other ailments, thereby defrauding the public. This is to warn you to beware of such people, who seek to profit by the reputation of the New Life Pills, which have been successfully curing disease for over 35 years. A sure protection to you is our name on the wrapper. Look for it on all Dr. King's or Bucklen's remedies, as all others are mere imitations. H. E. BUCKLEN & CO., Chicago, Ill. and Windsor, Canada.

It needs but little insight to tell that when your stomach and liver are badly affected, grave trouble is ahead unless you take the proper medicine for your disease as Mrs. John A. Young, of Clay, N. Y., did. She says: "I had neuralgia of the liver and stomach, my heart was weakened and I could not eat. It measured 5 feet and 10 inches and had 17 rattles and a button. Was as large around the body as a half gallon jar and weighed 75 pounds. The boy fought the snake for half an hour before he killed it and had to chase it into a pool of water before he could succeed in killing it.

YALLER BRITCHES.

A Warning to Mothers.

Too much care can not be used with small children during the hot weather of the summer months to guard against bowel troubles. As a rule it is only necessary to give the child a dose of castor oil to correct any disorder of the bowels. Do not use any substitute, but give the old-fashioned castor oil, and see that it is fresh, as rancid oil nauseates and has a tendency to grip. If it does not check the bowels give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and then a dose of castor oil, and the disease may be checked in its incipency and all danger avoided. The castor oil (and this remedy should be procured at once and kept ready for instant use as soon as the first indication of any bowel trouble appears. This is the most successful treatment known and may be relied upon with implicit confidence even in cases of cholera infantum. For sale by the Jackson Drug Co.

Given Up to Die.

B. Spiegel, 1304 N. Virginia St., Evansville, Ind., writes: For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago had to abandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was practically given up to die. Some Do Resign.

The saying that "few die and none resign" as applied to federal employees dates back to Andrew Jackson's time. The same feeling has been common ever since, and it has been a favorite excuse for attacks on the merit system of filling public offices in congress and outside. Yet it appears from the annual report of the civil service commission that about 70 in every 1,000 government employees resigned of their own free will last year. That is 7 per cent of the whole number. A similar rate of voluntary withdrawals from the service of a great railroad company would mean from 1,000 to 2,000 or 3,000 changes in a year.—Boston Transcript.

Another Good Man Gone Wrong.

He neglected to take Foley's Kidney Cure at the first signs of kidney trouble hoping it would wear away, and he was soon a victim of Bright's disease. There is danger in delay but if Foley's Kidney Cure is taken at once the danger is removed. The kidneys are the most important organs of the body and if they become diseased the whole system is affected. A. R. Bass, of Morgantown, Ind., had to get up ten or twelve times in the night and had severe backache and pains in the kidneys and was cured by Foley's Kidney Cure. Jackson Drug Co.

A. J. Nussbaum, Batesville, Ind., writes: "Last year I suffered three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to only aggravate my case. Fortunately I bought upon having Foley's Honey and Tar and it cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success." Jackson Drug Co.

BRECK CRAWFORD
Cope Branch, Ky.

FOR JAILER.

A COMPARISON OF ADMINISTRATION.

We said last week in a comparison of the present and former administrations would make interesting reading to the taxpayers of this county.

We have carefully examined the records now on file in the County Clerk's office, and submit below a comparison of the records of 1901, the last year of the Hargis administration, with the records of 1904, the last year of the Hargis administration.

YEAR 1901.
Total tax charged for 1901.....$ 7,964 74
L. & E. Railway..... 344 25
Received from Bridge in 1901..... 2,026 16

Total chargeable for the year 1901.....$10,332 15

YEAR 1904.
Total tax charged for 1904.....$14,092 94
Received from O. & K. Railway..... 2,500 00
Received from Bridge in 1904..... 3,230 78

Total chargeable for the year 1904.....$19,823 72
Difference between 1901 and 1904—$9,491.57.

While property in this county has increased very little, if any, in value during this time, yet you see that the amount of taxes has very greatly increased. As this money comes from the pockets of the taxpayers they have a right to know what is done with it.

We know from report it took less than $10,000 a year to run the government of Breathitt county during administration, and we know it should not take any more to run it now than it did then.

We built the bridge made many other improvements for the county. How many improvements can you see been made during the administration? We show where any bridge, or any improvement, was paid during the administration.

What has been the extra $9,000 collected for 1904? Why tax the people to keep up a few high salaries? Cut down the taxes and cut down the salaries and stop the leakages.

One dollar is enough poll tax for any man to pay.

High taxes, high salaries, extravagances for the few, hard times for the taxpayers.

Is your property worth very much more now than it was three years ago? Yet you are taxed nearly twice as much.

You pay $1.25 tax this year for every dollar you paid last year, although you listed the same property. What will they do to you next year?

Taxes have been as high as the law allows all during the present administration. What would they have done if there had been no bridge money?

If you are looking for bargains call and see C. Kelman.

The Breathitt County Teachers' Institute.

The Breathitt County Teachers' Institute met in the chapel of Lees Collegiate Institute, Jackson, Ky., July 21, 1905. Owing to the delay of Instructor Prof. Robert Burton, only a temporary organization was made in the forenoon. After devotional exercises and prayer by Uncle Reuben R. Smith, Supt. H. B. Noble called the districts by number. A large number of teachers were absent in the forenoon. Adjourned until 1:30 p. m.

Reconvened pursuant to adjournment. Prof. Burton having arrived, was introduced by Supt. Noble, and delivered a short but very pointed address, followed by Prof. Gorton, who extended an address of welcome to all the teachers and tendered them the use of the chapel, for which they are very thankful. The chairman appointed the following a Committee on Resolutions: A. C. Carpenter, H. S. Chapman, J. L. Moore, John C. Rose and Willie Taylor.

To the Voters of Magisterial District No. 6, Breathitt County, Kentucky:

I am about 50 years of age. It will be remembered that I was a candidate four years ago, asking you to vote for me to represent you as Justice of the Peace, all of which I have many reasons to believe you intended to do. But by some tricks which I could or was not willing to play, I was turned down. Now, allow me to say that I am a candidate for the same office and desire each and all of you to give me your support. I will say that I am qualified and will always be ready to stand for what I think will be to the interest of our county. I understand that there is a call for a mass meeting on August 19th, 1905. Hoping all will be present and that I will be your choice, I remain, yours respectfully,

J. H. HUDSON.

One Fare Plus 25 Cents for Round Trip to State Fair.

Arrangements for the big Kentucky State Fair to be held at Lexington September 18-23 go on from day to day, and each week develops some new feature which will add to the success of the big exhibition. Last week the Board of Control engaged the Heck Carnival Co., of Cincinnati. The official title of the company is the Will S. Heck World's Fair Pike Shows, and the title signifies what may be expected. Many of the shows were conducted by Mr. Heck on the Pike during the big St. Louis World's Fair and will be reproduced here just as they were given there. All of them are clean and moral in every particular. They include an excellent animal show, a Japanese theater, a theater with moving pictures, etc., a dog and pony show, a Persian theater and many other similar attractions.

The effort which the management of the fair has made to obtain the cheapest possible railroad rates has been rewarded. Secretary Bain has received a letter from Joseph Richardson of Atlanta, Ga., secretary of the Southeastern Passenger Line, stating that the railroads will make a rate of one fare plus 25 cents for the round trips from all points in the State to Lexington during fair time.

This rate is actually a one fare plus 25 cents, and is the same as the rate for similar entertainment. There will be beyond doubt be a remarkable large attendance during the week of the fair, and it will come from every section of Kentucky.

Elihue Clemons, of Smith Branch, was here several days this week measuring up some logs he had sold to the Swann-Day Lumber Co.

Our boys have not lost a game this season nor do they play on Sunday. At the last game at the park a young couple occupied seats in the stand. She had won an enthusiastic heart understanding the game right off and he loved her more than if she had been a sister. "The game reminds me of the household," he said, "the plate, the batter, the foul and the flies." "And it reminds me of marriage," she added. "First the diamond, where they are engaged, and the struggle and hits, then the men go out, and finally he difficulty they have in getting home." Come out tomorrow and root for your favorite club.

The Baltimore Convention.

The great International Christian Endeavor convention that assembled at Baltimore, July 15 to 10, and that the undersigned had the good fortune to attend was in several respects "the best yet." Twenty-five thousand delegates were in attendance, besides thousands of Baltimore's citizens. The city claims 600,000 people. It is noted for its beautiful streets, fine houses, large and substantial business blocks, magnificent churches and cathedrals, pleasant and pleasing parks, pretty women and brave men, its energy and ability to accomplish things worth while. It has nearly filled the great gap made by the fire. From the large number of monuments to be found there, it is called "The Monumental City."

The Fifth Regiment Armory, in which the convention was held, is an immense auditorium, large enough to cover many a Breathitt county farm, and to seat 20,000 people. It was beautifully decorated with thousands of yards of bunting in red and white, as well as black and gold, the convention colors. Around the sides was the motto: "Worship God." At the end above the great choir gallery and pipe organ was "The World for Christ," also the Shields of Baltimore and Maryland and a large C. E. monogram. The latter were covered with electric bulbs, so that when lighted at night they afforded a splendid appearance.

This twenty-second convention surpassed any other in the matter of music. The wonderful choir of 2,400 voices with splendid training tone and time produced music, melody and harmony something like we may hear, I imagine, in heaven, if we some day have the glorious fortune to get there. Then on Junior rally day the choir of 1500 happy, hearty, pretty youngsters sang divinely, delightfully, enthusiastically. To close the great body of children in the raised seats of the choir loft, was transferred into a mammoth flag by the multitude of numerous donning of caps and capes to form the proper colors. Then when the great audience sang "The Star Spangled Banner" (The song that was born at Fort McHenry, near Baltimore,) and that great human banner waved, it was an occasion to make one glad he was alive and an American citizen.

Of all the splendid speaking, by people of our own and other lands I can only say it was indicative of world-wide Endeavor. From England, Germany, France, India,

Eben Holden

By IRVING BACHELLER

Mine host bore the name of Eben Holden and was widely known as "AN OPPORTUNITY" from his habit of cheerfully approving everything and every one were "all right" to him so far as could observe. To the sure, he took exceptions on occasion, but even then the affair ended with the inevitable verdict of "all right," every summer.

Poor girl! It had been almost as heavy a trial to her as to me—cutting me off as she had done. Remembrances of my tender devotion to her in all the years between then and childhood must have made her sore with pity. I had already determined what I should do, and after Uncle Eb had gone that evening I wrote her a long letter and asked her if I might not still have some hope of her loving me. I begged her to let me know when I might come and talk with her alone. With what eloquence I could bring to bear I told her how my love had grown and laid hold of my life. I finished my article that night and in the morning took it to Mr. Greeley. He was at his desk writing and at the same time giving orders in a querulous tone to some workman who sat beside him. He did not look up as he spoke. He wrote rapidly, his nose down so close to the sheet that his face and I felt a fear of its touching them. I stood by, waiting my opportunity. A full bearded man in his shirt sleeves came hurriedly out of another room. "Mr. Greeley," he said, halting at the elbow of the great editor.

"Yes, what is it?" the editor demanded nervously, his hand wavering over the white page as he rapidly as before, his eyes upon his pen.

"Another man wanted to see you on South street."

"Better wait a paragraph his voice snapping with impetuousness he brushed the full page and began sowing his thoughts of 'Warn our readers. Tell 'em brass collars with spikes in 'em got a new mayor.'"

The man went away laughing. Mr. Greeley then gathered his copy and a workman who sat by "Proof ready at."

"Hello, Brower," he said, his work again. "Think how my love out the gas somewhere."

"Waiting until you die," I said.

He sent a boy for Mr. Otterson, the city editor. Meanwhile he had begun to drive his pen across the broad sheets with tremendous energy. Somehow it reminded me of a man plowing black furrows behind a fast walking team in a snow drift. His mind was "straddling the furrow" when Mr. Otterson came in. There was a moment of silence, in which the latter stood scanning a page of the Herald he had brought with him.

"Otterson," said Mr. Greeley, never slackening the pace of his busy hand as he held my manuscript in the other, "read this. Tell me what you think of it. If good, give him a show."

"The staff is full," Mr. Greeley said, the man of the city desk. His words cut me with disappointment.

The editor of the Tribune halted his hand on a instant, read the last lines, scratching a word and underscoring another.

"Don't care," he shrilled as he went on writing. "Used to slide down hill with his father. If he's got brains we'll pay him $8 a week."

The city editor beckoned to me, and I followed him into another room.

"If you will leave your address," he said, "I will let you hear from me when we have read the article."

With the hasty confidence of youth I began to discount my future that very day, ordering a full dress suit of the best tailor and a year that would have done credit to Brunel.

It gave me a start when I saw the bill would empty my pocket of more than half its cash. But I had a stiff pace to follow and every reason to look my best.

CHAPTER XXII.

TOOK a walk in the long twilight of that evening. As it began to grow dark I passed the Fuller house and looked up at its windows. Standing under a tree on the opposite side of the avenue, I saw a man come out of the door and walk away hurriedly with long strides. I met him at the next corner.

"Good evening," he said. "I recognized then the voice and figure of John Trumbull."

"Been to Fuller's," said he. "How is Hope?" I asked.

"Better," said he. "Walk with me?" "With pleasure," said I. And then he quickened his pace.

We walked awhile in silence, going so fast I had hardly time to speak, and the darkness deepened into night. We hurried along through streets and alleys that were but dimly lighted, coming out at length on a wide avenue passing through open fields in the upper part of the city. Lights in cabin windows glowed on the hills around us. I made some remark about them, but he did not hear me. He slipped now in a moment and began whispering to himself. I could not hear what he said. I thought of bidding him good night and returning, but where were we, and how could I find my horse coming presently at the first bend which turned suddenly and I saw him, a man in a dark suit, with a white shirt and a red tie, looking at me with a smile.

"I am glad to see you," he said, and he took my hand and led me to a small room where a man in a white shirt and a red tie was waiting for me.

to hear from her, all that day, only to see it end in bitter disappointment.

New York was a crowded city even then, but I never felt so lonely anywhere outside a camp in the big woods. The last day of the first week came, but no letter from Hope. To make an end of suspense I went that Saturday morning to the home of the Fullers.

The expectation of my value had dwindled sadly that week. Now a small fraction would have stood for it—nay, even the square of it.

Hope and Mrs. Fuller had gone to Saratoga, the butler told me. I came away with some sense of injury. I must try to be done with Hope. There was no help for it. I must go to work at something and cease to worry and lay awake at nights. But I had nothing to do but read and wait and wait. No word had come to me from the Tribune. Evidently it was not languishing for my aid.

I began to see there was no very clamorous demand for me in "the great emporium," as Mr. Greeley called it. I began to see, or thought I did, why Hope had shied at my offer and was now shunning me. I went to the Tribune office. Mr. Greeley had gone to Washington. Mr. Otterson was too busy to see me. I concluded that I would be willing to take a place on one of the lesser journals. I spent the day going from one office to another, but was rejected everywhere with the same result. I came home and set down to take account of stock. First, I counted my money, of which there was about $50 left. As to my talents, there were none left. Like the ples at Hillsborough taven, if a man came late to dinner they were all out. I had some fine clothes, but no more use for them than a goose for a peacock's feathers.

I decided to take anything honorable as an occupation, even though it were not in one of the learned professions. I began to answer advertisements and apply at business offices for something to give me a living, but with no success. I began to feel the selfishness of men. God pity the warm and tender heart of youth when it begins to harden and grow chill, as mine did then; to put away its cheery confidence forever; to make a new estimate of itself and others. Look out for that time. O ye good people that have sons and daughters!

I must say for myself that I had a mighty courage and no small capital of cheerfulness. I went to try my luck with the newspapers of Philadelphia, and there one of them kept me in suspense a week to no purpose. When I came back, reduced in cash and courage, Hope had sailed.

There was a letter from Uncle Eb telling me when and by what steamer I was to leave. "She will reach here on Friday," he wrote, "and would like to see you that evening at Fuller's."

I waited in Philadelphia, hoping to have some word to give her a thought of me. That night such a thought came.

I need of prayer for a wayward girl. I sent home a good account of my prospects. I could not bring myself to report failure or send for more money. I would sooner have gone to work in a scullery.
